FREEMAN VINEYARD 'RYO-FU' CHARDONNAY RUSSIAN RIVER VALLEY

SONOMA COUNTY • CALIFORNIA • UNITED STATES • NORTH AMERICA

TECHNICAL DETAILS

The Estate

Ryo-fu is Japanese for “cool breeze,” a fitting name for this Russian River Valley Chardonnay shaped by the chilly winds that blow in from the Pacific Ocean. Our local ryo-fu, along with the region’s famous fog and sandy loam soil, create ideal growing conditions for this vineyard.

Wine Making

Fortunately, 2021 was a smoke-free vintage for all of coastal California, and the first vintage since 2016 that brought virtually no wildfires in Sonoma wine country. This was in contrast to 2020, when the entire county’s vineyards were threatened by smoke.

Food Suggestions

Pairs well with pork, vegetarian dishes, and poultry based dishes.

TASTING NOTES

The 2021 Freeman Ryo-fu Chardonnay has a light gold color and a fruitforward nose of Fuji apples, nutmeg, honey and orange zest. It’s one of our more full-bodied Chardonnays with a full palate of ripe stone fruit, lemon cream and marzipan.

Chardonnay grape blend.

This wine contains allergens, sulfites.
